THERE IS NO SHADOW ON HER FACE, There is no shadow on her face!
Though as she sits beside the door,
Humming an old tune, soft and low,
We know that she can see the place,
Just over on the hillside there,
Now made by summer-flowers so fair,
Where he-whose life-work being done
Lies calmly sleeping in the sun!

There is no shadow on her face !
Though other heads beside him rest,
that once wore pillowed on her heast!
Indeed she seems to love the place;
For looking there ! I've seen her smile,
And heard her say, "A little while!
Her eyes looked far beyond the tomb
To where the lillies ever bloom! §

There is no shadow on her face ! she knows them safe across the river.
Where pain and grief can touch thoto never ty futth she sees that heavenly place.
That City on the oternal shore,
Where loved ones meet to part no more!
And thus even here beneath the skies
Dwesls in the light of Paradise!
